If you were a former, current, or prospective Audi Canada customer before June 2021, and/or if you received a notice from Audi Canada in or around June 2021 informing you that your personal information may have been compromised in a data incident, your rights are affected by this Quebec class action Settlement

(Sciscente v. Audi Canada Inc., 500-06-001152-210)

A class action was authorized in Quebec against Audi on August 1, 2022 following an alleged data breach of personal information in relation to clients or potential clients of Audi Canada Inc. (“Audi”) (the “Incident”). The Incident occurred between August 2019 and May 2021, and Audi sent letters or emails to certain affected clients or prospective clients in or around June 2021.

Although Audi denies any wrongdoing or liability, a settlement was reached with the Plaintiff for the resolution of all claims pertaining to the Class Action (the “Settlement”), which Settlement was approved by the Superior Court of Quebec (the “Court”) on May 20th, 2025. To fully settle and release the Class Action and all claims related to the Incident, Audi has agreed to pay an amount of CAD $240,000 into a settlement fund, and also pay for all costs and expenses required to implement the Settlement.

The settlement has now been approved by the Court whereby all claims in relation the Incident have been definitively settled.

You are included in the class action if you reside in Quebec and (i) your personal or financial information held by Audi was compromised in a data breach which occurred on or before March 10, 2021, and/or (ii) you received an email or letter from Audi dated on or about June 11, 2021, informing you of such a data breach.

You may no longer opt-out of the Class Action or object to the Settlement. Formulating a claim under the Settlement is now the only available remedy and relief the Settlement Class Members have in relation to the Class Action and the Incident.
